A Manual of International Dispute Resolution

Anthony Connerty

"The genius of the Manual's plan is that it is entirely practical, laying out the foundations and mechanics of various dispute-resolution frameworks, explaining the relevant tribunals and arbitration organisations, and illustrating the application of these to specific types of disputes. This is a very sound approach."

Sandra Day O'Connor, retired Justice of the US Supreme Court

An overview of international dispute resolution and settlement, especially in the fields of trade and commerce, investment, and intellectual property. The author looks at five key topics: supranational disputes, supranational dispute resolution bodies, international commercial dispute resolution; institutions concerned with dispute resolution in international trade and commerce; and online dispute resolution. Connerty, an English barrister with particular expertise in the field of international arbitration, introduces each topic, illustrating it by decisions of the International Court of Justice, the Permanent Court of Arbitration, the International Tribunal on the Law of the Sea, the International Centre for the Settlement of Investment Disputes, and decisions of national courts and international arbitration tribunals. He also gives suggestions for sources for more detailed study in each topic area. The book will be of interest to all those in Commonwealth countries and beyond who need to understand international dispute resolution processes and institutions.

The Prosecution of International Crimes A Practical Guide to Prosecuting ICC Crimes in Commonwealth States

A new era of international justice began with the coming into force of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court (ICC) in 2002. For the first time, a permanent international court has been established with jurisdiction to try individuals for the most serious crimes: genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes. But the impact of the ICC goes well beyond the international stage. The vast majority of cases will be investigated and prosecuted by domestic authorities in domestic courts. This has significant ramifications for the police, prosecutors, defence counsel and judicial authorities within States who may be called upon to investigate, prosecute, defend or adjudicate on such matters as well as render various types of assistance to the ICC. This Guide is intended to assist domestic authorities within Commonwealth countries in meeting this challenge by providing practical information about the Court, the relevant principles of international law and the new laws adopted in each State. Part I takes the reader through the structure of the ICC, issues relating to jurisdiction, an outline of the crimes, a description of the co-operation regime and general principles of international humanitarian law. Part II looks at national legislation that has been adopted to date.

The book incorporates both the international standard arising from the revised Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering 40 Recommendations and the Special Nine Recommendations. It will be of great use to policy-makers, regulators, financial institutions, the professions and other designated businesses in their efforts to develop viable AML/CFT systems. The book is divided into three main parts: the first deals with global issues, the second with national issues and in particular, national strategy formulation; and the third with financial and professional sector procedures.

Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in Practice

The Role of Judges in Implementing Economic, Social and Cultural Rights

edited by Yash Ghai and Jill Cottrell

This book examines the record of jurisdictions in which attempts have been made at judicial enforcement of economic, social and cultural rights. Contributions provide insights into the methods, specificity, and limits of judicial enforcement. They explore the interdependence of civil and political rights and economic, social and cultural rights, and the permeation of the latter into interpretations of the former. The judicial approach now tends to the view that not only are both types of rights essential for human dignity but also that economic, social and cultural rights, when not directly enforceable as such, help to elaborate civil and political rights.

An Introduction to Law and Human Rights for Young People in the Commonwealth

John Hatchard

This book provides an overview of some of the key legal issues that affect youth in Commonwealth countries. The issues covered fall, directly and indirectly, within the scope of the Harare Commonwealth Declaration of 1991. It highlights regional experiences and gives practical examples, as well as showing that both the official and unofficial Commonwealth play an important role in helping to achieve the goals set out in the Harare Declaration. Focusing on young people and their role as citizens, this title will be an invaluable teacher resource for citizenship curricula, as well as non-formal education settings in the Commonwealth countries and beyond. It will also be of interest to NGOs and educationalists.

Tackling the Unconstitutional Overthrow of Democracies

Professor John Hatchard and Dr Tunde I Ogowewo

There is a rich history of case law within the Commonwealth where there have been legal challenges to the unconstitutional overthrow of governments. These cases and a commentary on them are set out in this publication. It critically examines the evolution of judicial decisions on the subject. In doing so, it also evaluates jurisprudential theories underpinning these judgments. The position of the Commonwealth, especially its strong stance against the unconstitutional overthrow of governments, is set out. Consideration is given to possible constitutional provision which would reinforce democracy and offer protection to citizens against the unconstitutional overthrow of governments.

Commonwealth Guidelines for the Treatment of Victims of Crime

Best Practice Series

The victims of crime are sometimes overlooked when reforming the criminal justice systems of countries. This leads to the incorrect perception that 'criminals have more rights than victims'. This publication sets out best practices and guidelines for dealing with victims at various stages in criminal justice systems in the Commonwealth, including the role of police, prosecutors and courts. It also looks at issues of compensation and restitution for victims of crime. The book was written by an expert group drawn from across the Commonwealth.

Report of the Expert Group on Strategies for Combating the Trafficking of Women and Children

Best Practice Series

Trafficking of people (mostly women and children) for commercial sexual activities and forced labour is one of the fastest growing areas of international criminal activity – and one that is of huge concern. Trafficking in humans is now considered the third largest source of organised crime after drugs and arms. The Commonwealth Law Ministers at the 1999 meeting in Trinidad and Tobago concluded that the Commonwealth Secretariat should propose strategies to assist countries in developing national and regional initiatives against human trafficking. This title is the result of these proposals.
